

One mindless rant...

Hillary Clinton was in her usual superb form last week, addressing union members in her now familiar, raucous, bug-eyed rant: "Now, having said all this, why aren't I fifty points ahead, you might ask?"

Does she not have a clue why she is so disliked, aside from her abrasiveness and elitism?

Could it be her desire to raise the estate tax (death tax) to 65%, taking more small businesses out of the hands of the proprietor's family and his/her survivors?

Maybe it's her mindless drivel such as the comment, "Trump has been used as a recruiting sergeant for the terrorists."

Or her blatant lies to the families, as four flag-draped coffins arrived at Dover Air Force Base.

...deserves another

Apparently surprised at his citizens' revulsion to accept Syrian and other refugees from Middle Eastern countries, unvetted and uninvited, Mark Dayton, Democrat governor of uber-liberal Minnesota, gave an ultimatum to his own citizens: "Accept the refugees or get out!"

If Minnesotans object to Islamist Somalis (21 now missing according to a recent DHS report) or unknown Syrian refugees, they can live elsewhere.

Of course, the FBI now says ISIS is found in all 50 states...

How many cities will it take?

Tulsa and Charlotte

Another city is in chaos, streets filled with mobs of rioters and looters backed by Black Lives Matter (BLM). Leftists pillaged Charlotte, North Carolina last week; actual "protesters" were kept for effect.

Retail stores and other businesses were vandalized and burned, none connected with the so-called "racist" offenses by local police. Most rioters were professionals hired to destroy property and confront the Charlotte police, paid well to show up on a moment's notice to take advantage of a blossoming crisis. A black man was shot by police and they deployed on the spot, there to stoke racial tensions, usually creating these where few, if any, existed before.

As in Ferguson, Baltimore, and other cities pillaged, over 70% of the looters and rioters arrested were activist thugs with out-of-state IDs. According to a spokesman from the Charlotte-Mecklenburg Fraternal Order of Police (FOP), this was the case in the Charlotte multiple-night riots.

On the first night of the "unrest," as in Baltimore, the Democrat mayor, Jennifer Roberts, advised the police to fall back, to give rioters and looters "room to vent their rage and anger." So the green light for accelerated violence and destruction was illuminated. If Mayor Roberts wanted innocent businesses to be looted and destroyed, why didn't she just say so openly?

Newsbusters reported that Robin Roberts, host of Good Morning America, described the Charlotte riots as a "civil rights issue," stating that young people were "rising up and showing their frustration in a different way," conveniently leaving out the fact that hateful, violent crimes were committed during the "protest." It's amazing how much garbage can pass as analysis.

When radical leftists are unhappy with "peaceful protests," professional agitators are imported to fill BLM's media-prepared narrative: "Cops hate blacks and are out to kill young black men, armed or not."

Manufacture the chaos and the state-run media will show up to promote it, sympathize with the "protestors" and show footage of the same scenes of social unrest and barbaric behavior, over and over again.

The black man fatally shot in the Charlotte incident, 43 year-old Keith Scott, has been painted by the press as a "likable family man." Yet his police "rap sheet" is over 19 years long. Shot by a black police officer after he refused repeated commands to drop what appeared to be a gun, police had suspected Scott may be armed. His record of violence shows he wasn't a stranger to crimes committed using firearms.

Terance Crutcher, a 40 year-old black man, was shot to death in Tulsa, Oklahoma by a white, female police officer named Betty Shelby. Again, the state-run media painted the narrative that Mr. Crutcher was an upright family man and had his hands up when he was shot by Officer Shelby. The police video clearly shows otherwise. And, like Mr. Scott in Charlotte, the press never mentioned the extensive criminal record of Mr. Crutcher, who had been released in May, 2016 after serving nine years in prison for drug trafficking. His record of arrests goes back to 1996. At the time of his death, he had five open warrants.

But a glaring question remains: Why was there no planned unrest, no riots or looting, no property destruction in Tulsa? (Why "racism" in Charlotte, not Tulsa?)

Can it be that the Democrats have no hope of taking Oklahoma in the 2016 presidential election this November, but North Carolina is a toss-up?

To the radical Left, everything is political, even using racism. And Mrs. Clinton needs every angry black voter she can get.

We Be People

Tonight, September 26, the first debate of the 2016 presidential election cycle will be held at Hofstra University in Hempstead, New York. Long Island is far enough away from the mainland that most of the tremors created by the clash of two immense egos, berating each other in one room for 1½ hours, shouldn't cause much damage.

For the nation, it will be a spectacle not seen before: a champion of Capitalism versus a devotee of Alinsky Socialism.

Setting the stage for tonight's contest a few weeks ago, Hillary Clinton warmed up by speaking before various LGBT types at a fundraiser, describing the supporters of Donald Trump as "a basket of deplorables."

She elaborated on her accusations by doing what she does best: a deep dive into vulgar name calling. Glaring at her adoring followers, her voice ratcheted up to the hard, raspy, loud drone we've become accustomed to as her trademark vitriol, she let go:

"Bigots, racists, homophobes, xenophobes!"

In her latest attacks on Trump she held little back: "He's taking hate groups mainstream... he wants to divide us from the rest of the world and from each other... is reinforcing harmful stereotypes and offering a dog whistle to his most hateful supporters..."

"A man you can bait with a tweet is not a man we can trust with nuclear weapons... a man with a long history of racial discrimination, who traffics in dark conspiracy theories... temperamentally unfit to be president and commander-in-chief..."

As usual progressive-fare, she delivered one personal attack after another, ironically defining her own personality and traits while pointing the accusatory finger at her nemesis, Donald Trump.

We will see the candidate of "the Deplorables" (those voters who believe in the American Founding, the Constitution, the rule of law, our sovereignty, secure borders, God, guns, and rock-and-roll) challenge the candidate of "the *Despicable*s" (those who believe in none of the above, only an all-powerful central government) in a debate.

If Donald Trump is the anti-Hillary, arguing convincingly on the issues, knowing her enemy is her own personality, he wins.

NFL = National Forum for Loons

Attacks on 'Old Glory' expand

The Left has, for decades, worked to create disdain for our national flag and all that "Old Glory" represents. They've been actively assaulting the traditions and values of America and now they're ramping up the campaign of hatred for the symbol our very freedoms live under every day.

Their efforts have been aimed at banning the Flag from school rooms, businesses, and homes all over our country. The next target is sports stadiums and arenas.

National unity and patriotism is offensive to them and they want no part of it. They pursue lawsuits against the Stars and Stripes in courtrooms across America, allowing it to be spat upon and burned. Now they say it's offensive to minorities who don't have a cultural connection or any reason for loyalty to it and therefore it must be banned from display in the public square.

Numerous recent examples show the subjugation imposed on those who honor our Flag and how those on the Left despise this widely-revered ensign of liberty...

A veteran of the Iraq War living in Roseville, California was ordered to remove the Stars and Stripes from his apartment balcony, "so it didn't offend anybody who didn't believe in the American Flag."

On the same "left coast" the Ninth Circuit Court ruled that public schools could prohibit patriotic students from wearing t-shirts emblazoned with the American Flag on Cinco de Mayo because some Latino students complained it was racist.

The student government at the University of California, Los Angeles, voted to ban our Flag because it "has been flown in instances of colonialism and imperialism." They complained it's not "culturally inclusive," interpreted by some as "hate speech."

At an apartment complex in Webster, Texas the management told an American citizen he had to take down his U.S. Flag. They said his American Flag "was a threat to the Muslim community."

More examples abound, but few American citizens realize that these attacks on the well-respected symbol of our nation are attacks on the very meaning of America.

Anti-American leftists, such as the more than 1,000 radicals in the University of California system who signed a petition that attacked the American Flag, believe it "contributes to racism and xenophobia" and is "used to intimidate."

The leftist agenda to rewrite the American Founding, by fabricating Old Glory as a symbol of hate, has advanced further, now even more demented and diabolical, targeting our national anthem, the Star-Spangled Banner, as a "weapon of nationalism."

As the fool Colin Kaepernick and other NFL players ignorant of our Founding (and the very purpose of our nation's existence) disrespect the Stars and Stripes and "take a knee" at the singing of our national anthem, they attempt to tie the expression of patriotism and love of country at the opening ceremonies of NFL games to a concocted racist myth by the latest invention of leftist hate, Black Lives Matter. We can only feel pity for these sad dupes of the radical Left.

By their simple-minded actions they accomplish one thing: they expose themselves as inarticulate puppets who haven't a clue that this is the only nation existing that allows them maximum freedom to pursue their dream of opulent wealth accumulation and egotistical self-worth. Awarded fame for a brief time, they strut across a field, "full of sound and fury, signifying nothing."

Imagine; a symbol of freedom, paid for with the blood of those who championed what it represents, carried against oppressors the world over, is now an object of hatred. The lyrics of a song written to honor it, in a war to preserve our liberty as a free people, are now scorned and vilified.

Sadly, the NFL has become the National Forum for Loons, providing a stage for the promotion of ignorance. Martin Luther King, Jr. put it succinctly, "Nothing is more dangerous than sincere ignorance and conscientious stupidity."
