

Patriot Day

Today is the 16th anniversary of the attack on our nation by radical Islamists who sought to kill infidels by massacre and terrorize our nation into paralysis. It didn't work and imposing an Islamic theocratic ideology upon this nation won't work either – as long as WE embrace Liberty.

We are free only as long as we choose to be.

Today is Patriot Day.

Fly Old Glory at half-staff to remember those we lost and to remind us, "Never again."

'Nothing to see here...'

The case for voter fraud in New Hampshire during the 2016 presidential election is building.

There were 6,540 people registered with out-of-state drivers licenses. Of these, 5,313 people never applied for or registered a vehicle in New Hampshire.

It happens that Hillary Clinton won this state by 2,736 votes.

Ample evidence exists that the DNC, paid by the Clinton presidential election campaign, regularly bussed voters over state lines to register and vote in elections in states where they didn't reside, so this news is no surprise. As more states are examined, the vote fraud numbers will get much higher.

It's the AI Franken U.S. Senate race all over again, but where are the Republicans?

Hate factories and the unhinged

Liberal lunacy

Progressivism can give one headaches if dwelt on long enough. Here are three recent examples exposing the unhinged.

Applied Hatred

American progressives (liberals) and the Islamic State have something in common. They both have cheered hurricanes striking the U.S., hoping for death and destruction. In the case of the Islamic State, Western Civilization should be destroyed using hurricanes and any other weather event to assist in the subjugation of the infidel. "May Allah drown the enemies of Islam." For progressives in the U.S., hurricanes and other disasters should only harm those hated by the Left.

Actress Jennifer Lawrence stated that the hurricanes were "Mother Nature's rage," showing she was angry that Americans voted for Donald Trump. Jennifer believes human activity is causing climate change. Since we as a nation ignore it (Trump pulled us out of the Paris Climate accord), Mother Nature is getting even. Apparently, mankind has taken control and is changing the climate against her wishes, which makes her (Mother Nature) really mad, so she punishes us with hurricanes. No mention of God anywhere in Ms. Lawrence's rants, but that's to be expected. Mother Nature is so much easier for feminists to accept.

Progressives in Hollywood wished for hurricane Harvey to damage Houston because Texas went for Trump in 2016. As usual in liberal La-La Land, however, things are backwards: the city of Houston actually went for Hillary in the presidential election last November.

They cheered hurricane Irma's attack on Florida, hoping in particular for the destruction of Trump's property, Mar-a-Lago. Sadly, liberal hate is willing to accept collateral damage of innocents for achieving the goal of ridding the earth of the despised.

After all, it's only politics.

PC Madness

ESPN pulled an announcer of Asian ancestry from a UVA game because his name was Robert Lee. His ethnicity didn't matter. Here's the ESPN statement justifying their knee-jerk madness:

"We collectively made the decision with Robert to switch games as the tragic events in Charlottesville were unfolding, simply because of the coincidence of his name. In that moment it felt right to all parties... It's a shame that this is even a topic of conversation and we regret that who calls play-by-play for a football game has become an issue."

The events in Charlottesville had already unfolded. But it wasn't "an issue" until ESPN made it one, wrapped tightly in their politically correct straightjacket. Of course, 96% of the ESPN staff voted against Donald Trump last November, so I get it. There's no context any longer; a name could cause Antifa thugs to riot.

Duplicity

Planned Parenthood CEO Cecile Richards had this to say about the DACA (Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals) program for illegal alien "children" (average age, 22 years old): "Here at Planned Parenthood, we firmly believe that every person has the right to live..." She forgot the caveat, "...except for those pre-birth."

For progressives, there's always an exception. But who has ever questioned the "right to live" of an illegal alien young adult? It's the "right to occupy" or "right to geographical location" that's the actual question. Of course, DACA kids got here "through no fault of their own."

Kind of like an unborn child; it isn't the baby's choice either.

We Be People

What have we learned since 9/11/01?

Today, September 11, marks sixteen years since the attacks upon our nation in New York City, at the Pentagon, and the failed attempt on Washington, DC – thwarted by brave Americans who sacrificed their lives to save other Americans.

Does our federal government have the competency to address our current situation in 2017, after the years of demolition of our intelligence and force readiness, and the moral decay? Can forced diversity and political correctness be overcome, in favor of the reinstatement of a warrior culture, with the corrupted structure still in place?

Foreign individuals have been allowed to serve in our Armed Forces who have no loyalty to our nation and no duty to dedicate their lives to ensure her survival. They took the offer to get U.S. Citizenship.

Congressmen and other elected officials brag about the opportunity that “Dreamers” have to become legal by serving in our military branches. One can speak the words promising to defend our nation but not know the “why” behind those words. One can take an oath to defend the Constitution of the United States yet not have read or comprehended that document’s importance to the survival to our nation. Then there’s the danger to our national security in allowing foreign nationals to serve.

Since 2009, the Obama Department of Defense (DOD) enrolled 10,000 foreign nationals under a program called Military Accessions Vital to the National Interest (MAVNI). For their service, foreign recruits receive an expedited path to citizenship.

It seems that some MAVNI enrollees are unaccounted for and ranks have been compromised due to inadequate vetting. And a lack of discipline in implementing this program has created other problems – like foreign infiltration in our military. Some Congressmen want the program suspended, due to “several security risks.” Why only “some Congressmen”? Why not ALL? And are ANY security risks acceptable?

Or is their reasoning as foolish as the refusal to profile for Islamists by the DHS? Politicization of our security must end.

The delusional are surprised again

Party of Dysfunction

In a recent interview, Mick Mulvaney, President Trump’s director of the OMB (Office of Management and Budget) stated the obvious, warning Republicans their inaction has soured voters’ perceptions.

“We can’t be on defense when we talk about our principles; we can’t be ashamed of what we stand for...”

“If you can’t get rid of Obamacare now, if you can’t reform the tax code now, if you can’t fix the EPA now, those things are never going to be fixed – because people won’t trust us again with the levers of power. Frankly, they would be right.”

But the GOP leadership only knows defense; they don’t have an offense, even when dealing with principles. They are ashamed of what they stand for, apparently.

Republican Party elites simply don’t comprehend what they face. There’s a unique opportunity to accomplish great things and turn the country back to its original course. They have a president with the energy and drive to achieve the things they promised for years. All they have to do is pass his agenda, which the base supported heartily. Yet they sit on their hands.

Traditionally conservative voters no longer trust the GOP with the levers of power. Moderate Democrats saw Trump as the change agent for middle class tax cuts and plans for growth (jobs). Trump’s base wanted incumbent Democrats defeated. Instead, the GOP seeks the usual compromise.

In the Republican leadership’s blind resistance to Trump, they ignore the will of the people. They plan on plodding along at their usual molasses-like pace, postponing and delaying. If Trump succeeds in getting his agenda items passed he will be unstoppable and GOP leaders want to get rid of Trump almost as badly as the Democrats. “Outsiders” cannot be allowed to rearrange the rules or touch the steering wheel.

They’re biding their time until they get through the mid-term elections next year, then the 2020 elections. Trump will be stopped by that time, they think, so frustrated he won’t seek reelection. They believe they can hold their careerist “safe seats.”

They’re delusional however; those seats won’t be “safe” with an electorate that has pulled its trust, possibly permanently. Republican establishment types lack integrity; missed opportunities intentional and animosity toward Trump glaringly obvious.

Donald Trump knows this. Last week he surprised Republican leadership, arranging a “deal” with those who get things done. Democrats Chuck Schumer (Senate Minority Leader, D-NY) and Nancy Pelosi (House Minority Leader, D-CA) were giddy with their “new deal” advantage. They now have leverage to use on DACA.

President Trump is a doer; he isn’t used to lame excuses, over and over again, about why the Republican leadership can’t get anything done in any time frame less than 18 months. Trump has eight months under his belt and lots of accomplishments to his credit, but nothing of substance from a do-nothing Republican Congress: No repeal of Obamacare; No tax reform or even tax cuts; and No border wall. Trump sees failure, failure and failure, during eight months of excuses. President Trump wants to deliver on promises he made to the people.

He’s not a politician; he’s used to moving things along, “ahead of schedule and under budget.” With the Party of Dysfunction, he’s behind schedule and there’s no action on his budget proposals.

Trump makes deals to “get things done.” Unfortunately, this time he made a deal with undesirables who actually want him impeached. “Chuck and Nancy” feel no love for Donald Trump.

When he finds out that every bill that hits the Senate floor will have a Schumer “Dreamer Act” attached to it, things may reverse rapidly. Despite what Trump thinks, Schumer and Pelosi are not his friends, nor the country’s. There will be Democrat threats of a government shut-down in December if things don’t go their way.
